PROGRAM BRIEF

A 4-week push/pull/legs hypertrophy block for members who want high weekly training volume.

FORMAT

- Six-session rotation: Push A / Pull A / Legs A / Push B / Pull B / Legs B.
- Train 4-6 days per week depending on recovery. Continue the rotation instead of forcing specific weekdays.
- Compounds generally stay at RPE 7-9. Isolation work may reach RPE 9-10 on the final set when technique remains controlled.

FOUR-WEEK PROGRESSION

Week	Progression	Volume
1	Baseline loads; finish most sets with 2-3 RIR	Base
2	Add 1 rep per set or 2.5-5% load while staying in range	Base+
3	Add load and one set to selected priority movements	Highest
4	Keep useful load but reduce sets ~25-30%	Reduced / recovery

DOUBLE PROGRESSION

For an exercise prescribed 3x8-10, stay at the same load until you can perform 10/10/10 at the target RPE. Then increase the load and return near 8 reps.

RECOVERY & PROGRESSION

High volume only works when you can recover from it.

- Use 2-3 minutes between large compound sets and 60-120 seconds on isolation work.
- If performance drops for two consecutive sessions, take an extra rest day or remove one accessory set per exercise.
- Week 4 deliberately reduces volume. Do not add the removed sets back because you feel good.
- Begin the next block by adding a small amount of load to movements that reached the top of their rep ranges in Week 3.

HYPERTROPHY STANDARD

A hard set is useful only if the target muscle is still doing the work. Use controlled technique, consistent range of motion and repeatable setup before chasing additional load.

EXERCISE NOTES

Execution standards for the movements used in this program.

DOUBLE PROGRESSION

Increase reps inside the prescribed range first. Once all sets reach the top of the range at target RPE, add load.

BARBELL BENCH PRESS

Maintain a stable upper back and repeatable touch point. Drive through the feet without losing position.

CHEST-SUPPORTED ROW

Let the shoulder blades move, then pull without lifting the chest off the pad.

CABLE LATERAL RAISE

Lead with the elbow and use a controlled arc. Keep tension on the deltoid rather than swinging the torso.

FARMER CARRY

Stand tall, brace and walk with short controlled steps. Do not let the load pull the shoulders or torso sideways.

AMRAP

As many technically clean reps as possible. Stop at technical failure rather than forcing ugly repetitions.

HACK SQUAT

Keep the pelvis supported and knees tracking with the feet. Use a depth that can be repeated under load.

ROMANIAN DEADLIFT

Maintain tension through the hamstrings and glutes; do not chase range by rounding the spine.

LEG EXTENSION

Control the bottom position and squeeze the quadriceps at the top without kicking the stack.

BODYWEIGHT SQUAT FINISHER

Use a repeatable depth and continuous breathing. Break the total into sets if technique fades.
